

Thea Wurzburg bio:

Thea is part of BETA's Public Affairs team and manages state and local government relations across the country. She works closely with state and local government officials and other community stakeholders to educate them about Advanced Air Mobility (AAM), the benefits it will bring to communities, and the enabling infrastructure. She has helped develop policies to support the growth of the AAM industry and is an active participant in numerous state working groups. In her role, Thea has also contributed to numerous grant applications, which has included working closely with state and local stakeholders to develop plans for community engagement.

Previous to BETA, Thea worked in federal and state government and has extensive experience working closely with agencies at all levels of government. She spent almost seven years with then-Congressman Peter Welch, during which time she served in roles focused on community outreach and coalition building.
